

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a substantially planar business form assembly for use in jewelry repair or delivery. The business form assembly can be provided in a cut sheet arrangement in which each business form is provided with an envelope portion and at least a record portion for tracking and custody preservation. The record portion is provided with one or more removable labels and a receipt section. The envelope portion may have one or more closure flaps to enable the ready sealing and resealing of the construction so that the article can be sealed at one location, worked on and returned to the originating location without losing the integrity of the form assembly and its contents.
